FIFTY YEARS after the founding of De Witt Clinton High School, we are graduating. It is extremely doubtful if there are any students still attending Clinton who were members of the school back in 1897. We mention this because we have made a search for them and, as yet, have been unsuccessful. But to those past graduates, in deep admiration, we dedicate this book.

There's no doubt about it. Those men have brought honor to Clinton. They too, slept through some classes, as we have done; and they graduated, as we are doing. They next went out into the world and either continued their education or went to work. We follow the same formula. They engaged in all sorts of occupations and soon, very soon, they were making quite a name for themselves. They became writers, lawyers, doctors, athletes, they went into every field and found success.

They brought honor to Clinton. We hail these graduates. We honor and admire them. We dedicate this book to them, with the sincere hope that we can follow in their footsteps and bring honor to Clinton as they have done.

Dedication

TODAY the Seniors of De Witt Clinton launch their yearbook, dedicated to the imponderable fighting spirit of Senior Classes, past, present, and future. In a sense, the moment is most opportune. Preoccupied as we are with the harsh realities and conflicts of the aftermath of the war, and absorbed in the difficulties of college entrance, it is more than ever necessary not to lose sight of the intrinsic value and pleasure of the comradeship, spirit, and scholarship which each Senior Class strives to achieve and perfect.

If we seem to be producing a yearbook that is destined only to produce a laugh, as others have done, remember that the literary work crystalized among the pages of yearbooks past, present, and future, does not represent an escape from real life to the proverbial ivory tower. It is rather, an attempt to keep alive the things which made our existence worth while. A school bereft of laughter is a morbid place at best. Clinton is not a morbid place and since we are trying to capture its immortal spirit, humor is a prerequisite. We and our predecessors, therefore, feel that a laugh, a smile, a joke, if they serve, many years from now, to bring back felicitous memories of the days when we were happy-go-lucky kids with aspirations for the Presidency, are the right components for any yearbook. Our efforts are the efforts of youth, not disillusioning and despairing, but fired by idealism and hope, and underlined by what we hope to be a sense of humor.

There are connecting links, invisible to the eye, but stronger than bands of steel, which bind Clintonites together forever. Our book then, is dedicated to the perpetuation of these fraternal ties and their everlasting continuance.

Dear Friends

BEFORE we realize it, Commencement time will be upon us, and it will be your turn to vacate your places in order to make room for a new group of entering students. So it has been since the first class was graduated in June 1900.

During the fifty years of our existence the faculty and the students have built up valuable traditions under which you have prospered in your efforts to obtain an education. These traditions have played an important part in developing your characters as well as in advancing you from form to form. Clinton does something to every student. It leaves its mark. The members of the faculty are hopeful that their efforts have been successful in developing young characters and in inculcating ideals and attitudes which have stood the test of time and which will be beneficial to you in all your contacts with life.

It is my hope that all of you will become loyal alumni by joining the alumni association and that you will add your contributions to the glorious history of Clinton and its graduates. I wish you Godspeed!

Sincerely yours,

JOHN V. WALSH

Administrative

MR. WILLIAM P. ZINGARO—Serves as Administrative Assistant and as such shows a deep understanding of the problems of the average student. His whole hearted cooperation with the student body accounts for his wide popularity.

MRS. ANTOINETTE HERMAN—Patiently and unselfishly she serves Clinton as Dean of the Honor School. Always friendly and helpful, she offers counsel to all students seeking her aid. Her spirited devotion to Clinton is an inspiration to all.

MR. FRANK BOYLAN—As assistant to Principal Clark and later to Principal Walsh, he has the respect and admiration of the entire student body. His efficiency and untiring devotion to this school make him beloved of all Clintonites.

CLINTON'S history is not just the chronological order of events in the life of a high school. There is something deeper and more subtle about Clinton history, because it has been written by thousands of the boys since 1897. In these fifty years there has grown a Clinton tradition which has been instilled in the hearts of the boys not only by the Clinton High School, but also in the very hearts of the boys. The spirit which now reigns in the halls of Mosholu Parkway, and which prevailed in the first Clinton High School building on Thirteenth Street, has led Clinton, in war and peace, to the topmost heights, whenever the banner of Red and Black has been unfurled.

Here there is a great fusion of races, colors and creeds and we have learned what true brotherhood means from Clinton's teachings of democracy and comradeship. We have all played, worked, struggled and laughed together. We're all Americans and all worthy and entitled to the same privileges. By thriving and working together you, De Witt Clinton, have taught us the democratic way of life, and for this we are indebted, proud and thankful. Though we may scatter throughout the globe in a thousand businesses, professions, or services, we will never forget the job you have done in molding us and our lives. We are graduating into a world to become voters, workers and home makers; we are advancing to our prime of activity and responsibility. We will always remember that at De Witt Clinton we tasted for the first time the principles of freedom and tolerance embodied in the Declaration of Independence and the Bill of Rights. We, the class of June, 1947, will never abandon these principles nor hinder our great American heritage in any way for you have inspired us to become leaders and determiners of our nation's policies. We thank you De Witt Clinton for all you have done for us and for making us better Americans.

To the Men of '47

MY SINCERE congratulations upon the completion of your course at Clinton! The fact that you are graduating at the time of Clinton's fiftieth anniversary is particularly significant because your class will by virtue of this very fact always hold a prominent place—a sort of culminating place in the long roster of Clinton classes that have preceded you.

You are indeed going out into a troubled world. Clinton has tried to prepare you for the place that you will ultimately fill and for the work that you will be called upon to do. There is so much important work to be done that the doors of opportunity are wide open to each of you and the welcome sign is already out waiting to greet you. Whatever you do, do well. That way, and that way only, lies the kind of happiness that is built upon a solid foundation.

I know that your high school will never lose its interest in you. It will take pride in your triumphs and sympathize with your failures. As for your former principal, he wants you to know that wherever you may go, you are taking with you his deep wishes for your success, your good health, and your great happiness. Take care of yourselves, use your heads, play the game straight and above board. To each of you, happy landing!

Grace Shapiro	A Jurywoman
Aaron Cohen	Second Juryman
Louis Katz	Culprit
William Lichtenstein	First Spectator

Helen Stark	(Doesn't appear except in the dreams of the other eleven characters and the dreams of '47 Seniors)

Setting: Teacher's Court, Memphistopheles High School, Heaven.
GETZ: Court of Missing Spouses of the State of Insanity is now in session. Presiding judge is his MOST RESPECTED honor, Dr. Irwin S. Guernsey.
"DOC": Thanks, Getz. I don't know what I'd do without you (but I'd rather). What with holding down the jobs of court stenographer, treasurer, clerk, bank messenger, part-time dishwasher, and official court bookie, you're the MOST INDUSTRIOUS man I know. But now I'll harden my face; bring in the first case.
GETZ: All in goodtime, "Doc." But first you must meet our excellent jury. They're all men and women of distinction.

(THE MOST POPULAR jurist, Ed Hastings, is foreman. See him on the left, there, putting the other jurors through calisthenics.)

Say, by the way, Hastings, have you got a match?

HASTINGS: Sure, Getz, the old Clinton Match, a date with a peach!

"DOC": Shades of Louis Katz, but that was a bad pun! Hastings, have you ever speculated on the reasons for your popularity?

HASTINGS: No, Doc. Can't say I have, except that I told my neighbors that I always played the saxophone when I got lonely.

"DOC": I understand. Wow, that couple on the right is sure dressed fit to kill! That man even has spats and a morning coat on. I wouldn't have believed that could happen in Memphistopheles High.

GETZ: Um, that's Mr. Shattman and Mrs. Shapiro, the BEST DRESSED couple in the court. Rumors have it that both aren't earning enough at their present jobs, so they've taken July Fourth summer-resort jobs, where they'll dress the holiday lamb chops in the traditional American flag. Wonder what they're discussing so earnestly?

SHATTMAN: . . . and Grace, after tomorrow, I'm not going to wear these pants any longer.

SHAPIRO: Why?

SHATTMAN: Because they're long enough.

"DOC": And who's that fellow with all the women around him?

GETZ: I'll bet that's the MOST BELOVED Juror, Dean Cohen, and those hundred or so others around him are the rest of the jury panel.

"DOC": Say Cohen, how do you get all the women to love you? I might try some of your techniques out on Jessie K.

DEAN: Oh, it's easy when you wear a Senior Hat, as I do.

"DOC": Is that your only secret?!?

DEAN: Well, that, and my motto, "Love 'em All".

Prisoner Louis Katz enters, struggling with guards.

During the excitement, Mr. Lichtenstein, a spectator, shows his amazing VERSATILITY by coming to the aid of the attendants, improvising a makeshift straitjacket which he slips over the protesting Mr. Katz by using a clever judo hold.)

TIETZ (A Spectator): I'd like to COOPERATE in this case. On the surface it appears that the prisoner is mentally disturbed. I'd be glad to psychoanalyze him. I even have a few copies of the tests I used to give in De Witt Clinton High School, The Bronx, U. S. A., while I was serving my term there.

KATZ: (Interrupting) I'm bein' marauded; I'm bein' slaughtered! Say, judgey-boy what floor is this here court on?

"DOC": Second. Why?

KATZ: I'm getting out of here. Going upstairs. Wanna be tried in a higher court.

"DOC": What is the charge against this culprit? I'll give him life!

GETZ: Teacher's Court Case No. 30321. One Louis "WHITTY-BOY" Katz vs. the State of Insanity. Charge: Disturbing the dignified solemnity of a Memphistopheles High Classroom with an off-color remark.

[Whispers of shock and horror from the spectators.]

"DOC": Order, order, order in the court.

HASTINGS: I'll take a ham on rye with beer.

"DOC": Hastings, you may be most popular in PT, but on the QT, if you don't clam up, we'll have to put you up here with Lou Katz.

HASTINGS: No, no, not that!

"DOC": Katz, do you have a lawyer?

KATZ: No, but I have some good friends on the jury.

"DOC": Do you want a lawyer to defend you? I can recommend a very HANDSOME young barrister, Carl Schuldenfrei.

SCHULDENFREI: And I'd be glad to take the case, Mr. Katz. It might help the inferiority complex I've begun to develop, due to people who assume that my only attribute is my good looks.

KATZ: But I don't particularly want a lawyer, "Doc".

"DOC": Well then, just what do you propose to do about your case?

KATZ: Oh, as far as I'm concerned, I'm quite willing to drop it.

"DOC": Not a chance! Let's get on with the prosecution. The next person to create a disturbance will be ejected from the court.

KATZ: P-bh-th . . . - - (Bronx cheer)!

"DOC": We'll show that allegedly "WHITTY" fellow how funny he is when we sentence him. Mr. Katz, cracking a joke, you realize, especially a bad one, is one of the most serious offences you can commit in Memphistopheles High. Only eating your lunch in our Arista Office overshadows it. What do you plead, sir?

KATZ: I regret that I had but one joke to give for my poor, overworked pupils.

"DOC": Foreman Hastings, I call for a jury verdict.

HASTINGS: Guilty as charged. Jury recommends fifty kneebends as a just punishment.

"DOC": Does anyone in the court have anything to say before I sentence the prisoner.

DIAMOND: Aw, can't ya see da guy's sorry. It was a bum joke anyhow. Have a heart; let the guy off.

"DOC": Diamond, you're the BEST NATURED guy I know, but I'm sorry, he told a bum joke and must suffer just retribution. How? Obvious! We'll appoint our PRETTIEST gremlin, Mrs. Stark, to bewitch him away to hubba-hubba land, the land so hot that human blood boils at first sight. . . .

And so, we now leave the State of Insanity, to return to (or should we say remain in?) De Witt Clinton High School, The Bronx, U. S. A., where the jurors and culprits are serving their respective terms. Four years of it, for them at least, has probably been hell, but we know we've provided at least some humor to relieve their (and incidentally our) daily miseries. This piece is just a small measure of thanks on our immense debt of gratitude for the wonderful time and the wonderful education Clinton's teachers have given us.

"Fifty Year Story"

NO MATTER how you look at it, fifty years is a long time. And no one can deny that in the past fifty years a lot has happened. For between 1897 and 1947 two great wars were fought. The airplane, automobile, and a hundred other aids to mankind were invented and perfected. The principle of atomic energy was discovered and a new power capable of bettering or destroying the world was found. People emerged from a forced isolation to discover that the man in the fields of China was as much their neighbor as the family down the street. The interdependence of nations was soon made apparent and the United Nations, following a war which almost ended civilization, made its appearance. Disagreements marked its every session but hope was held high, and people looked forward to a new world, one world.

And we in Clinton led our lives. There's no denying it, the life of a high school student is not very exciting. But we were committed to four years of education in a high school which had also passed through a revolutionary fifty years. Fifty years had made De Witt Clinton into a high school rich in tradition. For it was first founded in a dingy building, a building which caused its first principal to remark that it resembled a barn. But Clinton grew; the building was changed, changed again; more students and teachers came and went until a new building was constructed. This time it was a huge building, capable of housing thousands upon thousands of students; spacious, fully equipped, on a green rolling parkway. But the building does not make the school. It is the students within the building; it is the faculty; it is the spirit between both. And in this intangible factor Clinton has excelled. For the spirit of cooperation that has existed in this school has always been its most admirable characteristic.

Boys of every race and religion came here and learned their chemistry, history, math, but most important of all, learned to live together. Discrimination had no place in Clinton, for Catholic, Negro, or Jew, and boys of every racial and religious group learned that hate comes with ignorance, and they were here to dispel ignorance. Side by side boys of every sort of background studied, lived, enjoyed. Friendships that lasted throughout the years were founded in Clinton and the boys learned that life is not a one man affair but an interlocking arrangement in which all have to cooperate.

But let us look through the years and study the evolution of De Witt Clinton High School, an evolution which changed it from a small box-like building of twenty-three faculty members and 586 students to a modern structure filled with thousands of students and a faculty roster running into the hundreds.

Let us study the "Clinton Spirit" which has also developed over these fifty years. Let us look back to 1897.

Originally called Boy's High, the school opened in that year and was soon accommodating over 500 students. A public high school was a novelty and an early failure was expected. But to the surprise of all, Boy's High prospered. Under the direction of its first principal, Dr. John T. Buchanan, the school grew until an annex was opened. Boy's High soon made itself felt in the field of sports, for its basketball quintet and football team romped to many victories over surprised opponents. The skeptics were a bit shaken and doubt was replaced by respect. Boy's High had won its place among high schools.

A forerunner of the Clinton News soon made its debut; the first city high school paper was snatched up by the students.

But the building was small and cramped conditions resulted as the enrollment figures reached 2,000. In 1900 Boy's High became De Witt Clinton High School to avoid confusion between itself and Boy's High of Brooklyn. With the new name came more and still more students. Annexes were going up all over the place to take the overflow from the main building.

Finally in 1903, the Board of Education announced that the old building, which was situated at 60 West 13th Street, would be replaced by a new and bigger school. People were shocked when they learned that the new building was to have 125 rooms, and the largest high school faculty in the world. They said it was a waste of money, that it shouldn't be done. But it was done, and the new school was constructed at 59th Street and 10th Avenue. Almost immediately its classrooms were filled with students. Dr. Buchanan continued as principal until he passed away in 1908, after devoting eleven years of his life to De Witt Clinton.

In his place there came the principal of Commerce High, Dr. John L. Tildsley. He must have felt reluctant to accept that post, for Commerce and Clinton were strong rivals in athletics. If a Clinton team went through a season without a victory and finally defeated Commerce, it was considered a successful season. Such was the situation as Dr. Tildsley arrived to take reigns. But despite the bitter antagonism between the two schools, the new principal was soon beloved by all. He performed his task well for six years and many new activities were founded in Clinton during his stay. Mr. Arthur A. Boylan founded the grandfather of the present General Organization. The Clinton News and the Arista Society were founded. Many other new clubs, societies, and organizations were established during the period in which Dr. Tildsley was principal.

1914 and the first red book appeared. Dr. Tildsley retired to make way for Dr. Francis H. J. Paul. The great war had started and Clintonites were engaged in raising money for Liberty Loans. Funds for the red cross and drives to purchase ambulances were on the mind of every student. Clinton became more active as the U. S. entered the fray. The number of gold stars increased on the service flag and students redoubled their efforts.

Armistice . . . victory . . . back to school.

With the war ended, Dr. Paul set about making his dreams for a new building come true. For, the building that had caused a thousand shouts of "impossible" and "wasteful" had served its purpose. It was overcrowded and inadequate for the thousands of students enrolled. Under the direction of Dr. Paul, a new building was planned and constructed. He had argued with stubborn legislators until his dream was a reality. But the strain was too great, and six weeks before the structure was to be dedicated, he died of a heart attack.

Mr. A. Mortimer Clark replaced him and plans for bettering the greatest secondary school in the world were under way. 1934 found 12,000 students in Clinton and its annexes. But the annexes were soon dissolved and students and faculty alike realized that such a huge school had its drawbacks; the contact between students and teachers was limited. Clinton moved on. The trophy case was filling as the red and black teams made themselves felt in every sport.

Things moved smoothly as Commerce received a thrashing 44-0 count at the hands of Clinton's football team.

Some of the greatest basketball stars ever got their start in De Witt. Ralph Kaplowitz, Tommy Byrnes, Adolph Shayes and others starred for the "Castle on the Parkway."

Between 1897 and 1947 the basketball team copped twelve city titles. Clinton was on the rampage in the field of sports.

1940 found senior hats taboo. But Joe Clinton put on the charm and the red and black toppers were reinstated.

December 1941 and war clouds were gathering. Seven days later the United States was at war. Shocked Clintonites returned to school, Monday, to hear Mr. Clark deliver an address calling for an all out effort to bring victory to the allies. The response was immediate as $200,000 in war bonds were purchased. The "Spirit of Clinton," a medium bomber, was bought for the Army Air Force. Thousands upon thousands of dollars were given by Clintonites as they heeded Mr. Clark's address and strove for peace.

And Joe Clinton dug deep, he saved tin, rubber and all other strategic materials until the day came when victory would be ours. . . . .

AND THEN WE ENTERED SCHOOL. . . . . .

"Four Year Story"

LOOKING BACK on those long 4 years in Clinton I remember; struggling and fighting my way to school through at 30 miles an hour . . . trying with all my might to keep warm in P.T. by lazily standing in front of the hot air vent . . . the way I forget to close my locker and rushed back to lock it . . . those long lines in the lunchroom and never getting the right hash you ordered . . . the clamor when plates crashed . . . those sardine packed buses and trains . . . buying ice-cream from the old man outside the building to avoid that Federal Lunch . . . the fighting (near riots) for bus passes in front of the G.O. Store and when you finally arived at the window, only to have it slammed down on your fingers and Mr. Strausberg threatening to send you to the back of the line . . . those Mid-term and Regents blues . . . those alibis when you didn't have your homework and trying with all your personal dignity to borrow homework in section . . . whistling that same old tune from class to class . . . Mr. Jennison and his assemblies . . . the stench from the chem labs . . . spring fever in classes . . . crowded classrooms, halls and lunchroom . . . Monday morning blues and Friday afternoon heaven . . . table hockey . . . beating the late bell by the "Skin of your Teeth"

. . . and half in a dream and half in a daze suddenly finding yourself a senior, 4 years in Clinton quickly passed by. . . . Yes, looking back we can recall everything as though we were living those years over again. Ridiculed as freshmen, sneered at as sophomores, ignored as juniors, and gaped at as seniors, but now that it's just about all over, we don't feel so eager to leave. We've grown up in Clinton and we will long to come back. So . . . let's go back now, and start at our beginning. . . .

September, 1943—January, 1944;

The day was divided into seven periods and there were 43 minutes to each . . . Larry Fuchs, G. O. President . . . War Drives in full swing . . . basketball team training for the coming games . . . track team practicing for their indoor campaign . . . our spirit jumped because of the good news received from our victorious armies in the Mediterranean and African theater of War. . . .

February, 1944—June, 1944;

Public and high school had been welded into one and we had become accustomed to the change . . . many new things were thrown at us . . . there were new words in our vocabulary, such as gym spots, "pool" room, tower, stairway and lunch passes (all of which could be obtained easily and cheaply if you knew the right persons). We sure knew speed because everything was speed; speed to beat the bell to class; speed to get on line in the lunchroom; speed to dress for gym (those were the good old days when we went to gym, remember?) . . . A smash hit was presented at Clinton-Nite, "Here Comes Mr. Jordan," ably supervised by Miss Leon . . . Clinton's track team won the Bronx Championship and the Penn and State Mile-Relay Championships but was defeated by Franklin for the City Crown . . . Mrs. Whalen returned and issued a swell copy of the "Magpie" . . . Murray Frank elected G. O. prexy . . . "EXTRA, EXTRA, France was Invaded" . . . Eisenhower and Montgomery, who led our victorious armies were cheered in Clinton's halls . . . Summer came . . . and so one year had passed. . . .

September, 1944—January, 1945:

Tearing ourselves away from a pleasant summer vacation we looked forward to see some real games of basketball, Schayes and Kaufman heading our list . . . we were now sophomores and we felt pretty high . . . classes were enlarged by many Junior High School graduates . . . student and faculty polls assured us of the re-election of President Roosevelt . . . our armed forces were attacking the very heart of Germany while General MacArthur was returning to the Phillippines, fulfilling his promise . . . stamp sales reached the peak . . . G. O. leader, Normy Altman . . . Canada Lee, present at the Douglas Society staged a moving and inspiring program on the subject of a better understanding of interracial and religious relations among the people of America.

February, 1945—June, 1945:

This term we were "exposed" to Shakespeare . . . Basketball team won the Bronx Championship . . . then came Madison Square Garden overfilled with cheering Clinton guys and the "Big Five" (Joel Kaufman, Captain Jordy Klein, Jerry Lampert, Milty Griess and Artie Glass) playing a swell game . . . City Champs . . . "Long" John Taylor of the track team, smashed the record in the 440 yard run with his time of 50.04 . . . Clinton-Nite a great success since you saw two shows for the price of one. "It Will Be All Right on the Nite" by the students and "Ozymandias Rides Again" by the faculty . . . Clinton was greatly shocked when news reached us that our beloved President, Franklin D. Roosevelt, was dead. The student body paid tribute to a great leader who gave his all for his country . . . In sports, a varsity softball team was added . . . Our handball team won the Bronx-Manhattan Championship . . . summer arrived.

September, 1945—January, 1946:

Once again we returned to the "Castle on the Parkway," still hearing "Extra, Extra, War is Over," in our ears . . . Japan had surrendered during the summer vacation and peace treaties were signed on the battleship "Missouri" . . . the whole world was talking and thinking about atom bombs and jet planes but the war was over . . . Our basketball team missed Kaufman, Klein and Lampert . . . Bert Nackenson, G. O. President . . . The music department became less exciting after the retirement of Mr. Benjamin Scudder . . . Football returned . . . Mr. Edmund Foote, one of our most beloved and respected teachers left Clinton . . . Regents had us scared stiff . . . The term ended as we were becoming Juniors . . . We were getting up in the world.

February, 1946—June, 1946:

Our basketball team looked good with Lloyd Thornhill and Walt Robinson . . . Julie Briller, G. O. President . . . U. N. O. sent more excitement clamoring through Clinton's portals by taking over Hunter College for several weeks . . . "What a Life" was presented at Clinton-Nite, under the direction of Mr. Milton Belasco . . . Mid-term and Regents blues set in and the anguish of waiting for marks kept the Medical Room pr[illegible] busy . . . we were eager for t[illegible]m to end so we could skip the [illegible] deeds of MacBeth and his "har[illegible] and unsexed wife" (so help me fellows, that's what it says in the book) . . . gigantic Gymkana staged, (Remember that Spanish dancer who did one of those Spanish "can-cans"?) . . . we looked forward with anticipation to the ever approaching summer vacation when school cares could be forgotten and Shakespeare could rest on his laurels once again. . . .

September, 1946—January, 1947:

We rushed to the G. O. Office to get our seventh form pins . . . we were seniors now; well, lower seniors . . . six months to go . . . Orchestra

UNDER the able baton of Mr. Frank Grapel, the Clinton Orchestra and Band have been recognized as the two foremost high school music groups in the city. From the aristocratic strains of the old masters to the pulsing rhythms of the march, the Clinton Orchestra and Band run the complete musical gamut, to the pride and enjoyment of the entire student body.

On Education and Equality

FOUR YEARS of academic learning have passed and ahead looms that myriad of practicalities through which we may apply our knowledge. The daily lesson is easily forgotten and rarely applied. Rather, we are affected by general trends of thought and opinion. Our observations and inquiries now have formed a basic pattern in our minds and from that structure the action of application will emanate.

Our entrance into Clinton meant for many of us an end to a cloistered life. Communities of like races, religions, and national origins have formed within our city; this "ghetto-ized" existence has had an effect upon our immediate lives. Family relationships, companionship, business practices, recreation, have all been confined too often to one area and one group. In Clinton we have had our first taste of the true world. We have completed four years of introducing ourselves to a newly discovered fellowman. Soon, this process bore the realizations, primarily, that we had much to learn from him, and secondly, that we had too much in common with him to be considered different.

And now, we are being graduated into that true world. We have taught ourselves the meaning of brotherhood, and success and pleasure through cooperation by equality. The before mentioned pattern for our thought has been partially the question: "What has Clinton done for me?" Answer it by observing the following points:

Will we ever be able to withdraw again to our own intellectually and physically isolated group?

Are we able to shake the hand of someone that may think, pray, or look different, and not notice how much alike we are?

Are we able to tolerate the prejudiced minds and speech of our companions?

No, we will not be able to, and therefore we have drawn a measure of successful learning from De Witt Clinton. Be it academic or of a human nature, it is an accomplishment, and it will add to the making of our better new world.

A Message from the Senior President

NOW THAT we have reached the culmination of our high school career, we must think seriously of preparing ourselves for positions as responsible and intelligent citizens. When we leave Clinton, we will leave by the same road, but each of us will seek divergent paths that will lead us to our chosen careers. For some of us, graduation from high school will mean entrance into the college of our choice where we may be better able to prepare ourselves for our life's work. Others, upon graduation, will enter some field of business, where they will learn from actual experience to cope with the problems of a practical world. We have been given the greatest freedom and opportunity possible in order that we may think and do things clearly. To a great extent by ourselves, but with the constant advice and guidance of teachers who have been kind and helpful, we have been able to reveal and to nurture our natural abilities and talents.

Clinton, its traditions and faculty, have instilled in us the essence of human dignity—the democratic spirit. The proper channeling of youthful energies for human betterment is education; the proper developing of initiative among the masses with concern for the individual as well as for the common good is democracy. It is here in Clinton we have developed these ideals; but with time and with ourselves rest the success and the need for both.

I should like to take this opportunity to thank all of you for your confidence in choosing me to lead you in your Senior term. I sincerely hope that this term will hold fond memories for you in later years. To each of you, wherever you may go and whatever you may choose to do—Good Luck!

"Sports Story"

FOUR YEARS of tip-top achievement—a fitting climax to half a century of Clinton athletic leadership; that's the picture the class of June '47 can proudly look back on with a chesty "We were there then!"

If in future years, Clintonites deign to pass their eyes over the books in search of years fully exemplary of the vibrant, living story that is Clinton, they will need retreat no farther into antiquity than the "good old days" of '43 through '47.

Now let's look at the record. . . .

February '44: We are now upper or "civilized" freshmen. During class, we read in the "Clinton News" that our trackmen are out for glory. "What glory," we ask, "without last year's stars, Rudy Simms, Tom Clayton and the Callendar twins?" But the guys who were left proved that they were pretty good; Johnny Taylor, Ollie Tucker, Artie Greene, "Red" Kosoff, Bennie Seidman, and Hank Cameron. We didn't know it then, but this team was to go on to win the Bronx Outdoor Crown by a tremendous margin, the first four were to capture the mile relay at the Penn Relay Carnival, and the team was to miss the city crown by only three points.

We went on to further success that year. The basketball team, with Joel Kaufman, Ad Schayes, Bob Campbell, Bernie Dauerman, Al Haas, and Jordy Klein, took the Bronx title with ease. But after fighting their way to the semi-finals in the Garden playoffs, the boys ran out of luck and fell prey to Franklin. So, they retired to the Parkway to bide their time for the chance that was to come the following year.

Meanwhile, the tennis and handball squads had won their Bronx-Manhattan crowns right on time, the latter for the sixth year in succession. Coached by Saul Robbins, the netmen had as their ace one of the best juniors in the East, Marv Mantin. Co-captains Julie Rivkind and Billy Dukas of the calloused-hand gang were acknowledged to be among the best players in the league.

September '44 and we're sophomores: Our attention is turned towards the soccer team. As has often been the case in that sport, one of the few in which there has never been a Clinton city leader, too many "ifs" told the story. Ernie Helmrich, Captain "Shorty"

Shey and Fred Goldberger all were the standouts for Clinton, and standouts in the league, but even so the club could not take the measure of old-time rival Commerce, which won the "big game," 5-1.

Looking at the Clinton swimming record for that year we find that the team was third in the final standings. Ken Giebel, George Taylor, Wally Scher, and Andy Neckles were the splash aces. February '45, we're getting up in the world: No one who attended Clinton in the early part of that year will ever forget the city champ gang which made history in the Red and Black livery. On March 24, the April-coached five beat Seward in the tourney final to cop the P.S.A.L. crown. Previously they had battled their way up through the playoffs and in doing so they walloped Tech, Curtis, and Lincoln. Joel Kaufman, Jerry Lampert, Adolph Shayes, Artie Glass, Miltie Griess, and Marv Finkelstein, carried the burden to bring Clinton its eleventh city title.

That same year, the indoor track championship went to Bayside again, but the champ meet, held in the Thirteenth Regiment Armory, was not devoid of Red and Black thrills. John Taylor set the all time 440-yard record of 0:50.4, and Ollie Tucker's 0:23.1 in the 220 was three-tenths of a second short of ex-Clintonite Teddy Ellison's all-time mark. While all this was happening, the fencers won the Bronx banner and finished in a third place tie with Erasmus for city honors. Captain Danny Taub paced the onslaught, and Marv Traub and Charles Levy were also accorded a deal of credit for the good showing.

All Clinton was smiling as the Athletic Department announced that King Football was returning to the Governor's Mansion after a three year absence. There was a tremendous turnout for the squad, and, in seeming rivalry to the excitement which the return of The King had brought, the swimming and cross-country teams climbed aboard the champ bandwagon. Larry Ellis, John Taylor, Frank Efinger, the last named just starting on his trail to fame, Don Spitzer, and Vic Danin formed a cross-country squad which walked off with borough honors and came within a hair's breadth of the five-borough kingpin spot which Adams annexed.

And water-wheels Captain Ken Giebel, Wally Scher, Ralph Kamhi, Jimmy Johnson, Freddy Orrik, and Norm Ackerman led the aquagation to a much-deserved Bronx-Manhattan championship. A post-season duel with Brooklyn Tech for the city diadem was unsuccessful. However, despite that fact, the 200-yard relay team of Giebel, Kamhi, Vincent and Scher, which set an all-time record during the season, kept up its undefeated string against the Engineers.

To return to those aforementioned footballers: They did not have what would be called a successful season by usual standards. However, Coach Jake did set the stage for the following year's successes. He came up with some first-rate varsity material, and, more than that, he got the jump on most of Clinton's league opponents who had not yet returned to the sport. The musclemen, standouts of whom were Ed Sherrin, Captain Joe Fabro, Davy Newstadt, Norm Cassowitz, Jack Lawrence, Ken Hernson, and Keith Davis, finished the season with an informal schedule record of one-and-three.

A story which leaves us feeling mighty low is that of the hardwood crew of '45-'46. It was a season of mediocrity for the most part, although it surely had its brighter moments. Milt Griess, Artie Glass, Jack Dick and Lloydie Haas, the first two from the champ team [and the latter the brother of Al], were expected to hold the team together for most of the season. They just did not come through too often, and the big thrills of the season came only when Greiss or Aaron Rosovsky, a big gunner who was new on the squad, had hot days.

In general, the season was a washout until the second half brought to the scene two fighters, Walt Robinson and Lloydie Thornhill, who did not know the meaning of the word "can't." They finished the season in a blaze of glory, winning their last four scheduled games, over Evander, Taft, Monroe, and Science, the third of which was a great upset over a club which had already clinched the Bronx title. However, it was all over after we met Columbus in a playoff for the Bronx's second Garden berth, and were buried under a 70-39 deluge.

While the trackmen finished third in the PSAL indoor champs, an individual star again set an all-time mark. Larry Ellis clocked the all-time league record of 4:29.6, breaking the great Frank Dixon's 4:30.1.

A borough and city title in cross-country and a football season which was well-nigh perfect—that was the record last fall. The cross-country team, sparked by Ellis, Efinger, Spitzer, Cardinal Sandiford, and Howie Jacobsohn, was far and away the best in the city; it placed second in two country-wide meets and won the NYAC Championship. Football, with Davy Newstadt, Whitney Arceneaux, Jack Lawrence, the latter's cousin Hal Shuster, Nick Guarino, Billy O'Connor, Charley Silver, Herb Ravitz, Kenny Gruber, Maurice Bchakjian, and Eddie Bentley as about the best on a very large squad, gained Walsh Manor Bronx-Manhattan laurels by virtue of victories over Seward, Stuyvesant, Monroe, and Evander, following smacks at McKee and Far Rockaway.

Then the tough finale of the season came up, and, adding bad luck to more of the same, the game not only was played on a foreign field, but in ankle-deep mud on a day when the biting cold served to keep everyone on Curtis High's small field shivering. Even so, it could have been a Clinton victory instead of a bitter 13-6 loss. But the breaks plus a battling White Warrior Club were too much. The season record was 6 and 1.

January '47 saw a new and unique tradition born at the Castle. The "Athlete-of-the-Year" contest was run off with nary a mishap, and track star Larry Ellis was installed as the first winner.

And then while we were trotting about in our senior hats, the biggest thrill of all came as an underdog Red and Black court squad put up the fight of its life to cop the city crown. Paced by Ed Warner, Lloyd Thornhill, Marty Schwemmer, Ed Friedlander, and Murray Alpert, the underrated team fought undefeated Lincoln down to the wire and finally, on the accurate set-shots of second string Elliot Freed, they went out in front to win, 49-44. Clinton had taken the basketball crown twice in a three year period.

We graduated as the track team, led by record setting Frank Efinger. went on to place second in the city. Clinton had hit the peak of scholastic sports perfection!

The Senior Celebrities Return

Fifty years after the class of '47 has graduated, De Witt Clinton High School is old and apparently deserted. There appears to be an absence of life in the once great high school. But wait, here come eight old men trudging up the cracked concrete path. Let's look into this.

The men approach the building. Their footsteps can distinctly be heard as they enter through the side door. Fifty years have left their mark on this group, for they were once straight, tall youths, and now are bent, old men. The corrosion of years shows plainly on their faces as they shuffle into the building. . . . . .

As they walked through the hall, a voice shouted, "Tickets to the garden game. Get 'em now . . . . hurry." They smiled and walked on. That ticket seller never missed a chance to make a sale. Rounding the corridor, they passed the G. O. office. An executive council meeting which had started at the time of their graduation was still in session. "Mighty long affairs" commented Dave Newstadt. They all liked him, since he was the Most Popular.

Still walking, they came to a staircase and mounted the steps. The age of the group showed plainly as they slowly and carefully picked their way upward. The same Clintonites who could once dash through a corridor, fly down the steps three at a time, and race to a bus in ten seconds flat, were now old and feeble. For this was the cream of the class of '47, returned!

They passed through a darkened hall and finally reached a lighted classroom. There was Mr. Stone, lecturing a class of bearded juniors. Poor juniors, Mr. Stone always had a few points to clear up after the bell before dismissing the class. Again they smiled and continued on their way.

Passing through the dim corridors brought back vivid memories. There was one of Mr. Marz's squadmen. He had fallen asleep and forgot to leave the school after all teachers and students had left for the newly constructed De Witt Clinton High School in the Catskill Mountains. They glanced at the abandoned elevator and memories of Louie the Elevator Man came to their minds. Since their graduation Louie had become Principal and finally Superintendent of the Board of Education. As all had expected, he had risen in the world.

Then one of them stooped over to pick up a faded copy of the Clinton News. "Look," said Lloyd Thornhill, "here's a "News" with a picture of me in it."

"Publicity hound," one of the others retorted.

"Look here, Artie Nayer," answered Lloyd," you were the Wittiest, but that was fifty years ago."

"Stop this arguing," shouted Dick Martin. He brushed off the lapel of his purple drape shape suit. Dick was always the Best Dressed.

Manny Moskowitz lit a cigar with a twenty dollar bill. "Most likely to succeed, that's you, right Manny?"

"Perfectly true, Eli," he disclosed.

Eli Glassman, the Most Handsome, neatly combed his hair and beard and continued the conversation. "Well, I'd always take looks ahead of money."

Newstadt agreed.

This annoyed Manny but T. G. Kanganis cut in and assured them that they both had desirable characteristics. "I wouldn't count one as better than the other," he assured them. He was the Best Natured, therefore he never contradicted anyone.

Eli Glassman changed the subject and passed around pictures of himself. "Give these to your daughters, they must want pictures of handsome men."

"Hey," said Nayer, the wit, "You were handsome fifty years ago, and then not too handsome."

Glassman shrugged and they went on.

With Hal Sherman, the most industrious, in the lead, they proceeded to the tower. There they found Mr. Jennison leading a group of old men in the singing of Clinton songs. The bald heads of these gents were covered with faded senior hats. "Well," said Mr. Jennison, "just two more years of singing and you boys will have made up enough cuts to graduate." The eight shuddered and left. "Boy," whispered Sherman "that almost happened to me." "You have to know the right people," declared Manny Moskowitz. They all agreed and continued on their way.

"It's getting late," said Thornhill, "let's start back." T. G. Kangansis agreed. He never disagreed. They passed down the three flights of stairs and soon found themselves on the first floor. A glance into the G. O. Office disclosed that the meeting was still in progress. "Mighty long affairs," Newstadt said again. They passed the Arista office; nothing doing in there.

Suddenly a sarcastic voice bellowed, "Out of the halls, schlimeals!" A look over their shoulders as they flew out with Sherman in the lead, disclosed that it was Louis Strassberg, returned for a trip through the "Governor's Mansion."

They regained their composure and once again eight bent men passed along the concrete path. The senior celebrities of '47 had returned.

Last Will and Testament

We, the class of June '47, being of sound mind and body, and having passed various exams and subjects, do now leave the life of Delaney cards, late passes, and uncovered books, to engage in more serious undertakings. We do therefore declare the following to be our Last Will and Testament. We bequeath

To Mr. Kanter.....A new brand of mustache wax.

To Mr. Boylan.....A book on forgery detection.

To the Sevens.....A few of our number to show them the ropes.

To Mr. Marz.....Some benzadrine for his squadmen.

To "Doc" Guernsey.....A smoking jacket to be worn in the G. O. Store.

To Dean Cohen.....A neon sign advertising the senior prom.

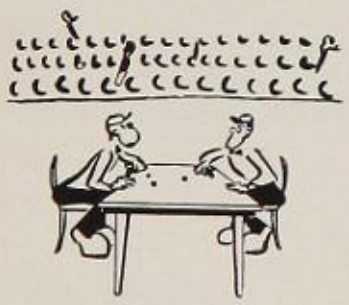
To Mr. Strassberg.....A phonograph with a record saying, "Back in line, schlimeal!" to be installed outside the G. O. Store.

To Louie.....A 1947 model elevator.

To Mr. Albie.....We leave the school almost as we found it. Be grateful!

To the G. O.....What more can we give? You've already drained us!

To our official teacher.....We leave—sorry, there's the bell.



To Mr. Mayforth.....Plans for an inter-lunchroom table hockey league.

To Coach April.....A champ team, almost intact.

To Coach Jacobsohn.....A schedule with Curtis removed.

To Dr. Walsh.....The hope that he will spend many more happy years in De Witt Clinton.
